Pinot Noir

Pinot Noir is one of the most famous and beloved grape varietals in the world. It is a red grape that is known for its delicate flavors and aromas.

Pinot Noir is the primary grape used in the production of Burgundy wines, which are some of the most prestigious and expensive wines in the world.

Pinot Noir grapes are relatively small and thin-skinned. This makes them susceptible to disease and frost. However, when grown in the right conditions, Pinot Noir produces wines that are elegant and complex. Burgundy wines are typically characterized by their red fruit flavors, their silky tannins, and their long finish.

Chardonnay

Chardonnay is another important grape varietal in the Paris region. It is a white grape that is known for its versatility. Chardonnay can be used to produce a wide range of wines, from light and refreshing to rich and full-bodied.

Chardonnay grapes are relatively large and thick-skinned. This makes them less susceptible to disease and frost. Chardonnay is a relatively easy grape to grow, which has contributed to its popularity around the world.
