

Winslow Homer: 150 Realist Oil Paintings

Realism Annotated

Winslow Homer (1836-1910) was an American painter and printmaker best known for his realistic depictions of the sea and its people. Homer was a leading figure in the American realist movement, and his work is often praised for its technical skill and emotional depth.

Homer was born in Boston, Massachusetts, and began his career as a commercial illustrator. In 1861, he traveled to Europe, where he studied the work of the great masters of painting. After returning to the United States, Homer began to paint scenes of everyday life, often focusing on the working class and the poor. In the 1870s, Homer began to spend more time on the coast of Maine, and his work began to reflect his love of the sea. He painted scenes of fishermen, sailors, and shipwrecks, and his work became increasingly realistic and dramatic.
